About the New York Junior League

Since 1901, the New York Junior League (NYJL) has responded to New York City’s most pressing socioeconomic challenges. Powered by nearly 2,800 trained women volunteers, the NYJL works with 60 community-based organizations to advance the economic, social, and emotional wellbeing of women and children from underserved communities throughout the city.

The NYJL develops volunteers’ leadership skills for service in the NYJL and on other nonprofit boards while cultivating a community that reinforces women’s personal relationships and collective power as drivers of positive change.

Mission Statement

The New York Junior League is an organization of women committed to promoting volunteerism, developing the potential of women, and improving communities through the effective action and leadership of trained volunteers. Its purpose is exclusively educational and charitable.

We believe that all women, children, and families should have equal opportunity, the resources to unlock their potential, and the structures to support them.

Diversity and Inclusion Statement

We welcome all women who value our mission. We are committed to inclusive environments of diverse individuals, organizations, and communities.

Core Values

We are passionate about our community. We believe in maximizing our impact through strategic external partnerships, advocacy, and volunteer action to achieve our mission.

We respect individuals. We respect each other, those with whom we work and those we serve in the community. We strive to understand others, to respect differences, and to treat everyone with dignity.

We act responsibly. We recognize that our decisions and our actions can affect others. We strive to uphold our commitments and act honorably in all that we do.

We promote opportunity. We are committed to helping each other achieve our potential. We foster a supportive and motivating environment that enables continuous learning, encourages mentorship, and develops future leaders.
MESSAGE FROM THE NEW YORK JUNIOR LEAGUE PRESIDENT

Welcome to the New York Junior League! We are mothers, daughters, sisters, and friends. We are leaders, community builders, philanthropists, and activists. We are a community of 2,800 women civic leaders, bound by the same goal since our founding 118 years ago — to improve the health and well-being of women, children, and families in New York City. As the first Junior League, we started a movement we continue to uphold and evolve today.

Women volunteers power the New York Junior League. They contribute their valuable time, talents, energy, and perspectives to addressing our city’s most pressing socioeconomic challenges. They are compensated by the relationships they build with fellow volunteers, community partners, and clients; the unique skills and experiences they gain from their volunteer work and our training programs; and the personal fulfillment of helping to drive positive change in our city.

During 2018–2019, we began implementing a three-year strategic plan encompassing goals to enrich the volunteer experience and advance our effectiveness in delivering responsive education, health, and social support programs. We train our volunteers to serve as leaders, equipping them with skills to design and provide relevant programming, work with our client populations, and carry out nonprofit operations. We continue to fortify our relationships with community partners and elected officials and show up at decision-making tables to amplify community voices.

We don’t do this work alone. We work in partnership with community-based organizations and across coalitions that focus their expertise on strengthening communities and their influence on holding leaders accountable to the women, children, and families of our city. We are deeply honored and thankful to work with such pioneering organizations and advocates.

Our love for New York City and the people who call it home are at the heart of all we do. Individually we are citizens of New York City; together we are the New York Junior League.

Warmest regards,

Lauren Jenkins Chung

Spotlight: Disrupting the Cycle of Housing Instability

During 2018–2019, the NYJL was laser-focused on responding to homelessness and persistent housing instability. The NYJL approaches this and other complex challenges from three angles.

DIRECT COMMUNITY SERVICES

Partnering with community-based organizations throughout the city, NYJL volunteers provided essential life skills and social-emotional wellness programs such as:

- Mentorship programs at Good Shepherd Services’ Chelsea Foyer and Euphrasian facilities, where NYJL volunteers established trusting relationships and shared hot meals with youth residents who have experienced ongoing instability and trauma

  “The Junior League is my favorite group that visits us out of all the groups that come here. They actually care about us and what we say. They want to do things with us instead of just showing up, doing the activity, and leaving.”

  —Resident at Good Shepherd Services

- Financial literacy workshops with adults residing at Urban Pathways’ Ivan Shapiro House

  “We were overwhelmed by the commitment and professionalism of NYJL’s volunteers and their investment in our cause. It’s truly a great partnership and one from which we have benefited greatly.”

  —Lillian Rountree, Director of Development and Communications, Urban Pathways

- Healthy meal preparation, science, and art workshops at Win’s Jennie Clarke residence

  “Through NYJL’s amazing programs, Win Kids have been exposed to fun topics and are able to put their newfound knowledge to the test with hands-on opportunities.”

VOLUNTEER TRAINING
NYJL’s volunteer education program coordinated multiple trainings that covered the foundational concepts and the current state of homelessness in New York City. During 2018–2019, NYJL volunteer experts, community partners, and City agencies, such as the Urban Outreach Center and the Department of Homeless Services, shared their expertise on working with populations facing homelessness and addressing interrelated challenges such as education access, health and well-being, and food insecurity.

“This training provided both interesting and applicable information for any NYJL community volunteer who works with populations that may currently be, or are at risk of, being homeless.”

—NYJL volunteer who attended a training on homelessness

ADVOCACY
NYJL’s trained advocacy committee partnered with Advocates for Children and Win to amplify the needs of children and families grappling with housing insecurity. The NYJL stood alongside fellow advocates on the steps of City Hall and delivered testimony on behalf of homeless families at a City Council budget hearing, calling for additional funds for more public school social workers to support students who are homeless. The New York City Council ultimately approved $10 million in the FY20 city budget.

The NYJL also hosted city, state, and federal elected officials for a roundtable dialogue on the various approaches to mitigate homelessness and the concrete ways the NYJL can contribute to these important efforts.

“We are truly grateful for your support... you identified a volunteer to read to key City Council Members the testimony of Jean Delaney, [a] parent who wanted the City Council to hear about how a Bridging the Gap social worker had impacted her child’s life...Having the parent’s voice as part of the conversation was critical.”

—Randi Levine, Policy Director, Advocates for Children
Making an Impact in Our Communities

Almost every night of the week, in neighborhoods throughout New York City, NYJL volunteers engage women and children in customized health, education, arts, and social support programs.

ADVANCING LIFE SKILLS AND SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

Ranging in age from infancy to older adulthood, NYJL's clients come from underserved communities. Many are navigating periods of difficult transition—aging out of foster care, facing homelessness, re-emerging from rehabilitation programs, or rebuilding their lives after incarceration. Other clients are recovering from trauma or confronting economic hardships or health complications, while the youngest are developing their social-emotional, coping, and problem-solving skills to take on life’s challenges as they mature. Across all of NYJL's community programs, volunteers create workshops, curricula, and tools to help clients strengthen their functional and social-emotional life skills.

NYJL's functional life skills programming includes workshops that support independent living. These workshops cover topics such as Partnering with the English-Speaking Union (ESU) for over six years, the NYJL works with newly arrived immigrants aiming to re-enter their professional fields in the United States. financial literacy and personal finance, renting an apartment in New York City, shopping for and preparing nutritious meals on a budget, creating a resume, honing job interview skills, and caring for personal health and hygiene.

Aiming to enhance social-emotional learning, the NYJL also supports children's and adults' journeys to understand and process their emotions, create and realize positive goals, embody empathy for others, foster positive relationships, and make responsible and informed decisions. Working with school-aged children, the NYJL leads hands-on science and art projects, reading workshops, career exploration, and leadership development programs.

To meet the need for more arts education in New York City public schools, the NYJL delivers cultural and arts programming that inspire students to imagine new perspectives and stretch their creativity and critical thinking skills. Children and youth attend live musical and theatrical performances, visit museums, create visual artworks, and perform in well-known theatrical productions.

During 2019–2020, the NYJL will pilot Hello Insight, an impact measurement tool based on scientific research showing positive effects of social-emotional learning.

As part of its objectives to advance social-emotional learning, the NYJL works with second-to fifth-grade girls at SCAN. The girls work on building their self-esteem and healthy relationships through self-reflection activities that include drawing portraits, creating vision boards, and writing their own affirmations. They work as teams to solve problems and make up cheers to celebrate themselves and their fellow students.

During 2018–2019, the NYJL served over 90,000 individuals through its programs and initiatives. Volunteers designed and led over 750 lessons, workshops, field trips, and support shifts through 23 programs with 34 long-standing community partners.
MEETING ON-DEMAND REQUESTS TO SUPPORT ESSENTIAL COMMUNITY NEEDS

The NYJL mobilizes volunteers for immediate, short-term community service, aiding new and long-time community partners’ rapid response to clients’ basic needs.

During 2018–2019, the NYJL served 26 community partners through 93 on-demand opportunities such as preparing and serving or delivering meals, tutoring middle school students, hosting social activities, sorting and bundling donations, and preparing basic hygiene kits for survivors of violence.

NYJL volunteers sort books for Project Cicero, a nonprofit which collects gently used children’s books and redistributes them to teachers working in underfunded schools.

Creating Vibrant Community Spaces Fit for Purpose

Welcoming spaces are essential for bringing together community, fulfilling mission-driven programs, and supporting health and well-being. Every year, the NYJL invests funds, supplies, professional services, and volunteer time to renovate a public park and a local organization’s facility.

THOMAS JEFFERSON PARK, EAST HARLEM

Since 1992, NYJL volunteers have designed, planned, funded, and renovated a playground or park in partnership with the NYC Parks Department. As many Manhattan parks lack funding or staff to make general improvements to gardens, benches, and playground equipment, the NYJL steps up to help meet these needs by contributing supplies and dedicated volunteers.

“The Junior League has made a tremendous difference not just in one park, one playground, but in many parks over many years. That’s really an astounding accomplishment. It’s not often that you get companies or institutions who come in, year after year, park after park, and steadily improve the park space for the community.”

- William T. Castro, NYC Parks Department Manhattan Borough Commissioner
The NYJL invested $100,000 in services and in-kind donations, and brought together 725 NYJL volunteers, neighbors, parks department staff, and volunteers from other organizations and businesses to beautify Thomas Jefferson Park, serving the 128,316 residents\(^1\) of East Harlem. Cumulatively, volunteers devoted 27,000 hours over 9 work days to plant garden beds; paint park benches, picnic tables, and playground equipment; and lay gravel around the picnic areas, among other tasks. The renovated park serves as another visible example of NYJL's commitment to East Harlem, which has been home to numerous NYJL projects for decades.

During 2018–2019, the NYJL invested $60,000, and 100 volunteers spent 4,400 hours over 12 work days to renovate the common area and kitchen of the Women's Prison Association's Hopper Home. The 145-year-old, 38-bed transitional shelter supports women who have experienced, or are at risk of, incarceration. Residents helped guide the redesign of their community space, and NYJL volunteers painted and decorated walls, built new furniture, installed storage space, and updated kitchen appliances.

As a result, residents have a fully functional kitchen to cook and share a meal together and learn culinary skills for potential employment. The vibrant community room now offers a space where residents can relax, socialize, and use the computer stations. Every week, the NYJL continues to meet with Hopper Home residents, providing workshops on essential topics for living independently, and the new kitchen has hosted guest chefs to teach cooking classes.
“Every Saturday, the Junior League ladies arrived, smiling and eager to get to work. The transformation from a drab utilitarian room to a bright well-designed space has been amazing. [...] The renovations have made a tremendous difference in the quality of life for the residents at Hopper. Having a clean, bright, well-equipped living space is essential in the process of successfully reintegrating into society. Residents and employees alike are grateful to the Junior League ladies for their vision and commitment to improving life at Hopper.”

– Karen Thomas, former resident and current Residential Aide at Hopper Home
Community Partners

NYJL’s community partners work on the frontlines everyday, taking on the issues central to NYJL’s mission while giving its volunteers the space to identify gaps and provide programs that meet clients’ needs. Thanks to these valuable relationships, the NYJL can provide consistent support to women and children throughout the year and often, over many years.

During 2018–2019, the NYJL corresponded with 60 elected officials, traveled to Albany 4 times, and met with 33 elected officials to advocate for NYJL’s priority issues: protections for survivors of domestic and intimate partner violence, reporting on unaccompanied immigrant children, and homelessness.

In 2019, NYJL volunteers met with New York state senators, urging them to support the Separation of Children Accountability Reporting (SCAR) Act, requiring childcare agencies to report to the state the number of unaccompanied immigrant children detained by the federal Office of Refugee Resettlement and under their care. After meetings with several elected officials, NYJL advocates witnessed the passage of the Act from the Children and Families Committee to the State Senate floor, and nearly two weeks later, the SCAR Act passed the State Senate.²

“You don’t know how important it is when legislators see community members standing there saying ‘We care about this issue.’ [...] The New York Junior League played a very important role in helping the SCAR Act pass the New York state senate.”

-New York State Senator (30th District) Brian Benjamin

² After passing the State Senate on May 30, 2019, the SCAR act died in the Assembly and returned to the Senate’s Committee on Children and Families. As of the writing of this report, the bill remains in the State Senate. https://legiscan.com/NY/bill/S00222/2019
ADVOCACY INFORMED BY EXPERIENCE

For decades, the NYJL has stood with survivors of violence through advocacy for survivor protections and community program support services, with these complementary efforts informing and reinforcing each other.

Currently, NYJL volunteers, trained as state-certified crisis counselors, meet with survivors at New York Presbyterian Hospital's Domestic & Other Violence Emergencies (DOVE) Program, offering empathy, and presenting options for medical, mental health counseling, housing, and legal services. In prior decades, the NYJL organized temporary housing for women and children seeking safety from abuse, and partnered with the Legal Aid Society to help survivors of domestic violence secure uncontested divorces. The NYJL also founded and organized the Race to Erase Domestic Violence with New York Road Runners to raise funds and awareness.

Equipped with the experience of providing support services, NYJL advocates for survivor-focused legislation over the long term. NYJL was a proponent of a package of anti-trafficking legislation, first introduced in 2007 and subsequently amended, with the most recent additional protections signed into law in 2018.

Informed by its prior work with incarcerated women in the now-closed Bayview Correctional Facility, and its work over the last seven years with formerly incarcerated women at Women's Prison Association’s Hopper Home, the NYJL advocated for the Domestic Violence Survivors Justice Act (DVSJA), granting judges more discretion when issuing sentences or rehabilitation requirements to survivors of violence convicted of crimes related to the abuse. Following this legislation for almost a decade, the NYJL collaborated with coalition advocates, learned from survivors, invited them to speak at the NYJL, and helped rewrite the bill to make it stronger. The legislation ultimately passed in 2019.

3 According to the 2008–09 report by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, 11% of women inmates reported sexual abuse by prison staff at Bayview Correctional Facility, significantly exceeding the national average of 2.2%. Sexual assault at Bayview Correctional Facility was widely reported in the media around the time of the report’s release, the facility’s closure in 2013, and after. The NYJL builds on volunteers’ skills through hands-on workshops, expert panels, committee assignments, and leadership positions that focus on timely community issues and practical skills for managing a nonprofit organization. These trainings concentrate on four core areas important to NYJL volunteers’ work: community, fundraising, volunteer experience, and strategy and communications.

NYJL's Leadership Development program prepares NYJL volunteers for current and future leadership positions at the NYJL, at other nonprofit organizations, and in the community. Volunteers gain a deeper expertise in important community issues as well as practical and transferable skills in strategic planning, project management from ideation to completion, nonprofit operations, public speaking, and communications strategy.
HANDS-ON SERVICE FOR OUR YOUNGEST VOLUNTEERS

Jr. Junior League offers a series of educational, dynamic, and engaging activities to teach preschool- and elementary-age children the principles of philanthropy and to promote family volunteerism. During 2018–2019, young volunteers helped set up weekly meals for guests who were homeless, tidied up parks, made gifts for families with babies in the neonatal intensive care unit at a local hospital, and created holiday cards for isolated seniors, among other activities.

SHARING BEST PRACTICES FOR NONPROFIT LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT

Aiming to leverage mutual expertise and foster colleague organizations’ and its effectiveness, the NYJL works with nonprofit experts to organize networking events, Q&A panels, and trainings to prepare interested NYJL volunteers for service on other nonprofit boards. During 2018–2019, these events covered topics such as the responsibilities for joining a nonprofit board, strategic planning, data security, and brand management.

According to NYJL’s 2019 membership survey, 112 out of 636 respondents (17.5%) indicated that since becoming an NYJL volunteer, they had joined other nonprofit organizations’ junior or governing boards.
Raising Funds to Support NYJL’s Mission

Completely volunteer-led, NYJL’s fundraising events are complex, highly organized productions that account for about a third of its annual revenue. NYJL’s signature fundraising events provide unique opportunities for volunteers to develop new skills in nonprofit fundraising and project management, while also nurturing camaraderie among NYJL’s volunteer community.

During 2018–2019, NYJL volunteers raised $1,386,821, or 36%, of NYJL’s revenue budget.

HOUSE TOURS

NYJL’s biannual House Tours showcase Manhattan’s unique residences, highlighting architecture, art, history, and a range of interior design styles. The self-guided tours allow attendees to explore some of New York City’s most interesting private homes, while bringing in the necessary dollars to fund NYJL’s programs. The 2018–2019 House Tours welcomed guests from 14 states, including California, Texas, Florida, and Nebraska.
